INTRODUCTION

BY THE CHANCELLOR OF THE UNIVERSITY, DR MAURICE MANNING

In my role as Chancellor of the National University of Ireland, it is a most enjoyable honour to present the annual programme of awards. NUI Awards have been offered since the foundation of the University in 1908 and some of the scholarships and prizes are even older. Suffice to say that we have a long tradition of recognising and rewarding academic distinction.

We, in the NUI, value learning, curiosity and the pursuit of knowledge at every level and stage of academia. Among the diverse range of NUI Awards, we are pleased to present medals for undergraduates in subjects across all faculties, scholarships for recent graduates, studentships for doctoral candidates, fellowships for post-doctoral researchers, and prizes for more senior academics.

I offer my warmest congratulations to the recipients of all NUI Awards in 2021. In yet another very challenging year, you have shown not just disciplinary knowledge and academic skill, but also resilience and adaption in the face of rapidly changing circumstances. Now it is time to take a moment, and to reflect on your exceptional effort, commitment, sacrifices, and successes.

We also take a moment to recognise those who have encouraged and supported you in your studies, and acknowledge the vital contributions of family, friends, teachers, colleagues, staff, and others in the wider NUI community.

It is a great pleasure, as Chancellor of NUI, to see the breadth and depth of academic excellence shown across our constituent universities and recognised colleges, by first year undergraduates up to senior academics, at campuses in Ireland and abroad. NUI has rigorous standards; they have been met and exceeded. I heartily congratulate everyone that we honour at the NUI Awards Ceremony 2021.

DR MAURICE MANNING
Chancellor of the University
